WESTVIEW REMEMBERS

There is a very special poem we hear and recite every year that honors and commemorates those who have and are risking their lives to maintain peace between the nations, keeping us safe.

"In Flanders Fields" is a war poem written in the form of a Rondeau (type of French poetry). It was written by Lieutenant Colonel John McCrae, a Canadian physician, during the First World War, who was inspired to Ypres. They held ground in a Flanders area, and when a friend or fellow soldier died they were buried there. The poem was first published on December 8th, 1915 in a London magazine called "Punch".

write this beautiful poem after the death of his good friend, Lieutenant Alexis Helmer.

The concept of 'Flanders Field' was derived from where the Canadians had their ground in the

On Friday, November 9th, 2012, Mr. Taborek's class and the Admin held a ceremony over the PA. Calvin, Hilem and Sagal are all students who spoke about the countries their families have come from, and the difficulties and dangers these places present. They spoke of how thankful they are to be able to live in Canada, safe and free. These students, representing the rest of Westview, are very grateful to the soldiers who made their lives possible. At 11:11 am, Westview held a moment of silence, while wearing our poppies, to pay tribute to those who gave up their lives, and those who are still fighting, to protect us. Westview will always remember.

WESTVIEW FIGHTS BACK ANTI-BULLYING WEEK

BY TAZLIN JAHAN

Anti-bullying Week took place on November 19th – 23rd, 2012. This week signified the prevention of bullying and the importance of spreading awareness about the harmful affects of bullying. Westview students were actively engaged and worked diligently in spreading awareness throughout Westview.

Bullying is the act of undermining a person's ability, achievement or self esteem, whether it be in sports, at school, online, etc. It can be inflicted both verbally and physically and this is not acceptable.

Anti-Bullying week was established to speak up and stand up to bullying. This is a great opportunity for schools, colleges, and students to get involved.

At Westview Centennial Secondary School, we recognize and appreciate Ms. Mackenzie and her PPC and leadership students who took the liberty of creating eye-catching, artistic posters for Anti bullying Week. Their work is beautifully displayed on the 2nd floor of the building, and is titled "Stop Bullying". These students have also presented speeches during morning announcements and have spoken about the recent suicide of a student in Canada named Amanda Todd, whose death was due to her being bullied.

The Movember Movement

By: Kevin Noguera

You may have noticed many men growing out their moustaches all month long. Movember is responsible for the sprouting of moustaches on thousands of men's faces across Canada and around the world. With their "Mo's", as they are called, these men raise funds and awareness for men's health, like prostate cancer and male mental health.

Many Canadians have been growing their whiskers to support this cause with the support of many women in their lives. "Mo Sistas" and "Mo Bros" raise funds by seeking out sponsorship for their growing efforts.

Many people don't think about health issues unless they have to, but in fact we know that by creating awareness of these issues amongst society, we create change, and we develop the idea that by doing something little, we can make big changes in the world. It is easy to let your moustache grow to raise funds for cancer research and treatments. Yet, many people are not aware of this "growing" event and they do not know how they can easily help.

Picture Taken by Kevin Noguera

Canada joined the Movember movement in 2007. In 2011 many Canadians participated, raising $125.7 billion for the Movember Foundation. This event is held in 21 countries and has the co-operation of 1.9 Million "Mo Bro" & "Mo Sistas" around the world so far.

Movember is not only an activity for men's participation, but also for women, who play a key role in the campaign. They do this by supporting "Mo Bros" who grow moustaches and raise awareness. In fact, (most) women can't grow a moustache, but they can still contribute to this amazing cause. "Movember to some people may just be an excuse to grow out a silly mustache, draw one on or even have it tattooed on their finger. I find it particularly heart warming as it represents my father, my grandfather, my brother as well as all men. It is seldom we take the time from our busy lives to consider how much Cancer affects our society. You may not be able to contribute something financially, but you can personally take the time to get involved and encourage the men in your life to increase early cancer detection. This is what I have accomplished," said Ashley Lachance, a Movember participant from Toronto and a friend of Westview. She has supported this cause for a long time and she is an example of how everyone can be involved in these activities that concern men. Remember that you can also create change by making the people around you aware of the health risks they may face, and by growing a moustache. So keep this in mind, small contributions make big differences.

Dear View,
I've got a question for you. I find I get really angry with my classmates over silly things sometimes. How do I control my temper so that I don't get myself into trouble?
—Signed Anonymous

Dear Anonymous,

This is a really good question. We should start by telling you that violence is never the answer to any situation, if that is how you sometimes tend to react to challenges. Reacting to someone with violence or in any other negative way means that the person that upset you wins. So, all you have to do is to try to not be a person whose buttons are easily pushed and resist the urge to fight someone. Practice calming techniques like taking deep breaths and counting aloud, and then take a step back and think about the situation rationally. If the situation is serious enough that you feel you need support, you should talk to your teacher or a trusted adult. They are there to help you. Remember we all have our bad days; don't let yours take control of you.

Amanda Todd's tragic death has attracted a lot of attention recently, and it has forced us to look at bullying more seriously and be aware of the harmful effects it can have.

Amanda was a victim of bullying who posted a video on YouTube, and using flash cards explained how she was being bullied, blackmailed and physically harmed by people around her. It is because of Amanda Todd and many other people who have been victims of bullying, that it is crucial we raise awareness of its effects and prevent situations such as this one from happening again.

Not only should we solely dedicate this week as Anti-Bullying Week, but also continue to spread awareness about bullying throughout Westview and in our communities, all year long. Let us never forget Amanda Todd and all the victims who have struggled and continue to struggle with unnecessary and damaging acts of cruelty.
